

Biography

Hannah was born in Dulwich, and grew up in Streatham, South London.

She attended Rosemead School in Dulwich and then St. Christopher's The Hall School in Beckenham before moving to West Sussex.

She was heavily into art and drama at school, and would regularly attend 'The Royal Schools of Music Festival of Speech and Drama' every year, performing poems and songs, including some poems that she had written herself.

She went on to study art at college and then Civil Engineering at Greenwich University. She has been involved with some of the most iconic construction projects in the world including the London 2012 Olympics. Hannah has written articles for the 'Institution of Civil Engineers' has been involved with a Guinness world record and nominated as "Woman in Engineering of the week" for 'National Women in Engineering Day' from 2014 to 2016.

Hannah's first Children's book titled "Inky Babble" was released through Toil & Trouble Publishing on the 5th December 2016. She is currently working on her second children's book, which will be released in 2018 and a young adult's novel.

She is an accomplished artist and produces all of her illustrations by hand, using water colour and artists colouring pencils with ink.

Hannah currently resides in Kent with her husband Simon, their son Sebastian and a Dachshund called Monty.